much of a break. The married women are busy battling their eyes and making with the chummy talk.

I just wonder what the husbands think goes on at these places? Their wives have the situation pretty well taped. Hubby is stuck at home with the kids and Ma is out living it up. Not bad. One day these men will get smart and make their old ladies stay at home where they belong. — FOOL-ME-NOT

Dear Fool: Boy, that's what I call "livin' it up"—a mother who must do her house work, ironing and washing, mending, cooking, shopping, and then she gets the rare privilege of putting in 8 hours every night at a factory.

How lucky can she get? I'll guarantee you that 99 women out of 100 on the graveyard shift would just love to be at home, and if Pa were able to swing it financially she'd be very happy indeed.

Dear Ann: My in-laws are wrecking our marriage. We were married four months ago and now my husband is in the service. He's stationed 100 miles from home and it's a real problem. He wants me to come to the base every week-end and he's free. It's easier than wasting his time traveling. I've never been able to go alone yet. His mother and dad always insist on driving me. They stick like glue every minute.

Parents have rights, too, but what about us? My husband is as sick of this as I am. What can we do?—NEVER ALONE

Dear Never: It's your husband's place to ask his parents to arrive a day later, or skip a couple weekends. It's difficult to imagine that they have such poor memories. Surely THEY were once newlyweds. It's your husband's place to speak up.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experience of thousands of teenagers if you read ANN LANDERS' new booklet, "How to Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Copyright 1959, Field Enterprises, Inc.
